

Where nothing is overlooked but The White House

The Hay-Adams

History

The Hay-Adams is located across from the White House on a site once occupied by the residences of John Hay, who served as President Lincoln's secretary, and Henry Adams, great grandson of John Adams, an author of the Declaration of Independence and second President of the United States. Their homes shared a reputation in their day as the social center of the Capital, and the magnificent hotel which replaced them after 1927 followed suit in grand style.

Today we continue this tradition, inviting guests from around the world to enjoy a comfortable stay at The Hay-Adams.
