GENT

History

NH Collection Gent warmly welcomes guests to experience an unforgettable modern stay, where the charm, beauty and history of the city blend perfectly.

Following an elaborate renovation, NH Collection Gent, which has evolved from NH Gent Belfort, presents refined and elegant rooms restyled to provide modern and tasteful spaces for our guests and exceptional panoramas of the renowned Belfry Tower. The architectural essence of the hotel is reflected in the building façade showcasing the “Filips van Artevelde” corner structure, an eclectic architectural marvel. NH Collection Gent pays tribute to its historical lineage by weaving a narrative of romance, inspired by the literary work “Jacob Van Artevelde” by Hendrik Conscience. The tragic love saga of Veerle Van Artevelde and Lieven Denys, set amidst the strife of the Hundred Years War, lends an air of theatricality to the hotel’s atmosphere. The 13th-century “Denys Medieval Crypt,” embedded within the hotel’s foundations, unfolds the chronicles of the city’s affluent trading history, and currently serves as a charming events venue, rich with stories, suggesting the idea of a hidden wedding chamber. The hotel’s conference spaces, named after the textile guilds, mirror the city’s profound textile legacy and offer guests an immersion on the city’s historical soul.
