PHOTOGRAPHIC COLLECTION

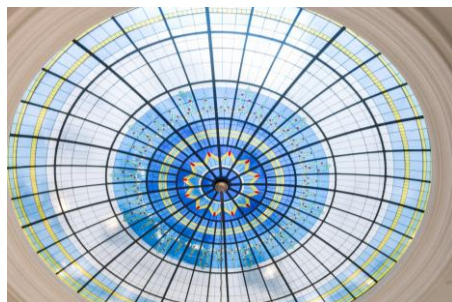

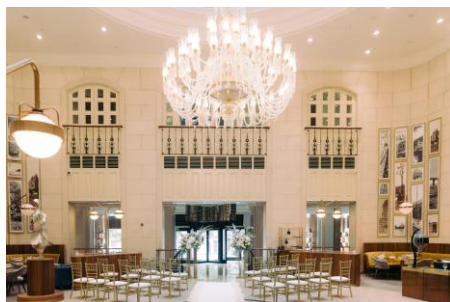

PHOTOGRAPHIC COLLECTION

One of Europe’s most beautiful cities, Budapest offers romance, historical charm and majestic architecture to create an unforgettable destination for your upcoming wedding and event.

At the Al Habtoor Palace Budapest, we offer:

- Elegant wedding venues, including the stained glass-domed Kupola Lounge
- Personalized menus to reflect your tastes and traditions
- Creative wedding cakes, customized by our talented pastry chef
- Special gifts for the couple, including a suite on your wedding night and an anniversary dinner

Reasons for visiting Budapest

The Hungarian capital’s charm lies in the many cultural influences that affected the city during its long history. The mixture of western capitalism that has been advancing relentlessly since the change of political systems, and the after effects of the more than 40 years of communist era give Budapest an exiting appeal. The city, originally consisting of two separate towns, Buda and Pest, united in 1873.

Thermal Baths, Medicinal Waters

Budapest is renowned for its several-century-old Turkish baths (the Király Bath, the Rudas, and the Veli Bej Spa) but you also have the option to splurge in upscale spas (the Gellért, and the Széchenyi Baths) or in the wide range of spa and wellness hotels.

Wide Variety of Cultural Entertainment

There’s always something going on in here, no matter in which season you come. There are great festivals all round the year (Budapest Spring Festival, the Summer Festival and the Cafe Budapest Contemporary Arts Festival in Autumn are the two biggest cultural events). More than 100 museums welcome tourists with various exhibitions, the themes including fine arts, contemporary arts, science, history, gastronomy. The Hungarian Opera House on Andrassy Avenue is not only a cultural venue, but a beautiful architectural sight. More into off the beaten track city adventures? Plenty of thematic walks, organized by smaller ventures, reveal the hidden aspect of Budapest, including the life of the former Jewish Quarter, infamous crimes scenes of the capital to abandoned factories.

Winter Holiday

Unlike many other cities, Budapest doesn’t sleep in the winter. The season’s highlight is Christmas with organ concerts, shops and streets decorated with Christmas lights. The focal point of the holiday is at Vörösmarty Square where the city’s main Christmas Fair is held.

Fine Hungarian Wines, Lots of Places to Taste Them

Hungary has 20 or so wine regions, the most famous being Tokaj, Eger, Szekszárd, and Villány. You can taste the best of Hungarian wines in several places. The best one is an intimate stone cellar in the Castle: where a knowledgeable sommelier tells you great stories about local wines and wine making while you are sampling some delightful reds or whites.

Plenty of Restaurants, Tasty Local Food

There are countless restaurants, bistros, taverns, fast food places, as well as international eateries. Although the quality varies widely, the city has many restaurants where you can enjoy a pleasant meal at a fair price. If you want to have a first-class meal you’ll find around a dozen of fine dining and Michelin-star restaurants in Budapest where Hungarian star chefs prepare exciting menus from fresh, highest-quality ingredients.

Shopping

Shops, boutiques, markets abound in Budapest. There are several shopping centres that are great places to shop for designer clothes, electronics, books, jewelry, toiletries, small gifts, food stuff etc. For buying authentic Hungarian gifts and delicacies visit the Central Market Hall at the Pest end of the Szabadság híd (Liberty Bridge). The inner city gives home to several stores selling world-famous designer brands: Louis Vuitton, Ermenegildo Zegna, Gucci, Hugo Boss, Escada, Furla, Burberry, etc.
